Debut Album by Dean Mickoski Defines New York House Music

New York City DJ and producer Dean Mickoski releases house music debut album, defining the sound of underground New York house music in 2013.

House music has undergone many changes in the last few years, but the underground club scene of New York City has always remained true to the original spirit of house, driven by grooves and basslines, and has during the past year picked up influences from the tech-house scene in Europe.

Dean Mickoski's debut album 'Tech Phenomenon' is a tribute to current NYC house music. The album features several new tracks such as 'Lights of New York' as well as tracks released during the past year, including the hit 'Like A Hard Beat', courtesy of 2MR2 Records. The album is released this week on the Sweden based Clubstream Green label.

Dean Mickoski also known as DJ Dee is originally from Macedonia, but lives and breathes NYC house like no one else. Working as a DJ for Privé NYC, a private event company, his work brings him to clubs and crowds all over the city.

As a producer, launching his career only last winter, Dean has come a long way. His track 'Like A Hard Beat' broke into numerous download charts and he is now releasing his first full length album.

"We've been following Dean Mickoski since shortly after his debut single and in January we approached him and offered to release his debut album. Tech Phenomenon turned out to become a stand-out piece of dance music. It's that album people will pick up in 20 years and say 'Yeah, house music really hasn't changed much in the past twenty years!'."
